The trekking route crosses rice and millet fields and typical villages following the Marshyangdi River before entering Manang and approaching Thorong Pass (5416 m.). You will have acclimatization in Manang.

Acclimatization is needed to reduce possible risks like altitude sickness because the trekking route passes through pretty high altitudes. Smoothly trek leads to higher elevation and reaches Thorang- La Pass, one of the highest passes on the earth. Soon after crossing Thorong-La Pass, the walk descends to Muktinath in the lower Mustang region.
